

special collections
DOUGLAS Library

QUEEN'S UNIVERSITY
AT KINGSTON

KINGSTON ONTARIO CANADA

THE
Old and New Interest: OR A
Sequel to the Oxfordshire Contest.

BEING A Complete COLLECTION

Of all the Pieces

In PROSE and VERSE, on either Side of the QUESTION,

That have appear'd since the Nomination of the New Candidates.

Together with

Several ORIGINALS never before printed: Particularly a Letter from a Lady of Distinction to Lady Susan Keck, containing Observations on a Pamphlet entitled An Address to the Freeholders, &c.

L O N D O N:

Printed for W. OWEN, near Temple Bar; and sold by the Bookellers of Oxford. 1755.

[ Price One Shilling. ]

Shortly will be publish'd, Price Six-pence,

Number I. of

The Election Magazine :

OR THE

OXFORDSHIRE REGISTER.

To be continued every Fortnight.

Tros Rutilufve fuat, nullo discrimine habebō.

Oxford : Printed by W. JACKSON, in the High-Street : Where Pieces in Prose or Verse on either Side of the Question, relating to the present contested Election, will be thankfully received.

---

A
S E Q U E L
T O T H E
Oxfordshire Contest, &c.

THE Reader will find a particular Account of the Rise and Progress of the present Opposition in the preceeding Part of this Collection, which contains all the Pieces publish'd on both Sides the Question, previous to the Meeting held at Oxford in favour of the New Interest; and in Consequence of which the following Advertisements were printed :

Oxford, Feb. 15, 1753.

THIS Day in pursuance of an Advertisement for a General Meeting to nominate proper Candidates to represent the County of Oxford in the ensuing Parliament, a very large Number of the Nobility, Gentry, Clergy, and Freeholders of the County, met at the Bear Inn in this City, when

A 2

Lord

Lord Parker and Sir Edward Turner were proposed as Candidates, and unanimously approved of by all the Company there assembled, among whom were,

His Grace the Duke of Marl-	Thomas Brereton, Esq;
brough, Lord Lieutenant	Richard Carter, Esq;
of the County.	Geo. Richard Carter, Esq;
The Earl of Coventry.	Tho. Rich. Carter, Esq;
The Earl of Jersey.	William Clayton, Esq;
The Earl of Macclesfield.	William Connolly, Esq;
Earl Temple.	Cha. Cotterel Dormer, Esq;
Earl Harcourt.	Geo. Davis, Esq;
The Earl of Guilford.	John Deagle, Esq;
The Earl of Inchequin.	Paul Elers, Esq;
Lord Parker.	John Eeles, Esq;
Lord Cadogan.	Robert Fittiplace, Esq;
The Hon. Mr. Parker.	Sambroke Freeman, Esq;
The Hon. Mr. Talbot.	John Goodenough, sen. Esq;
Sir William Boothby.	John Goodenough, jun. Esq;
Sir Jonathan Cope.	Thomas Hall, Esq;
Sir Monox Cope.	——Hodges, Esq;
Sir Thomas Heathcot.	Thomas Howard, Esq;
Sir George Oxenden.	Col Howard,
Sir John Read.	Thomas Howe, Esq;
Sir Edward Turner.	——Jenkinson, Esq;
Lord Banbury.	Joshua Jernionger, Esq;
Dr Barton, }	Anthony Keck, Esq;
Dr Gregory, }	——Lambourn, Esq;
Dr Far'haw, }	James Leigh, Esq;
Dr Forester, }	John Lenthal, sen. Esq;
Dr Hunt }	William Lenthal. Esq;
Dr Shipley, }	John Lenthal, jun. Esq;
Dr Newton, }	John Müller, Esq;
Dr Brown, }	Sanderfon Miller, Esq;
Dr Burton of Maple Derham	Robert Needham Esq;
Dr Friend.	——Obrion, Esq;
J. Hind.	Thomas Paynton, Esq;
Dr Leigh, for—Bee, Esq;	William Perry, Esq;
Dr Morris.	Lieutenant General Reade,
Dr Pardo.	John Read, Esq;
Dr Webber.	Thomas Rawlinson, Esq;
Thomas Blackall, Esq;	——Sayer, Esq;
Edm. Cha. Bloomberg, Esq;	Thomas Sayer, Esq;

George Schutz, Esq;	Tho. Leigh, Clerk.
George Southby, Esq;	—— Lord, Clerk.
N. Southby, Esq;	Tim. New, Clerk.
——Tilson, Esq;	Jo. Newcome, Clerk.
John Travel, Esq;	Francis Payne, Clerk.
John Twifelton, } Sons of	—— Phillips, Clerk.
Tho. Twifelton, } —Twifel-	J. Pinnel, Clerk.
Fra. Twifelton, } ton, Esq;	—— Price, Clerk.
Samuel Wilmot, Esq;	—— Princeps, Clerk.
John Wright, Esq;	J. Rigby, Clerk.
William Bradshaw, Esq;	John Saunders, Clerk.
Thomas Bray, Clerk.	Erasmus Saunders, Clerk.
Ralph Church, Clerk.	Edward Stone, Clerk.
John D'Oyley, Clerk.	George Toovey, Clerk.
Matthew Dutton, Clerk.	Robert Twycrofs, Clerk.
William Goodenough, Cl.	Henry Whitfield, Clerk.
Jof. Jane, Clerk.	Wm. Worcester Willon, Cl.
Oliver Jones, Clerk.

Besides very many more others, Gentlemen and considerable Freeholders, whose Names it would be too tedious to insert here; and though the Appearance on this Occasion was so great as to exceed the Expectations of most People, yet it would have been much more numerous had not the Apprehensions of the Small-Pox, and the Badness of the Roads, prevented the Attendance of many Persons, who sent Letters to excuse their Absence on Account thereof, and to express their Readiness to espouse the Interest of those Candidates, who should be nominated and approv'd of at this Meeting.

To the Gentlemen, Clergy, and Freeholders of the County of OXFORD.

WHEREAS at a general Meeting this Day held at Oxford, in Pursuance of an Advertisement of the 6th Instant, for nominating Candidates

Candidates to represent the said County in Parliament at the next general Election, we have had the Honour of being nam'd and unanimously approv'd of by a very numerous Body of the Gentlemen, Clergy and Freeholders met on that Occasion, we take the Liberty in this publick Manner of requesting the Honour and Favour of Your VOTES and INTEREST in our Behalf, 'till personal Application can be made to You, which we shall take the earliest Opportunity of doing; and we beg Leave to assure You that we shall upon every Occasion be ready to shew our steady Attachment to His Majesty King GEORGE, our present happy Constitution, and the just Rights and Liberties of the People in general, and of this County in particular.

P A R K E R.

E D W A R D T U R N E R.

After this new Nomination, both Parties exerted their utmost Efforts to promote their respective Interests in the County; in consequence of which the following Pieces were published at different Times. Many of them, it may be observed, are connected with, and allude to those printed in our former Collection.

To HIM whom it ought to concern.

S I R,

I Had often heard the former Part of your Letter quoted as a conditional Resignation, and have Myself pleaded it as such: But what was my

my Surprise upon reading the Whole, and seeing it published to serve a Purpose, which neither the plain Sense nor seeming Intention of it can justify! How felt your Heart at the writing of it? Your ill-grounded Pique had surely then subsided, and, when at Liberty to decline, you decently withdrew from a rash and unadvised Undertaking.—These were then the Motives; which should you now disavow, consider with yourself, as a Gentleman, the odious, though necessary Light in which it must appear! As a low Artifice calculated to lull the present Candidates into a fatal Security, by which you might surreptitiously obtain a Seat, which the forced tinselled Interest of All your L——s can never procure for You.

I am your Friend and Well-wisher,

Bicester,                      A FREEHOLDER.
Feb. 10, 1753.

*Some Queries from the public spirited Cobler of Hampton-Wick, (who, in spite of all Opposition from a very great Man, recovered to the People their Right to a Way thro' a very great Park) in which are considered some Queries from a Cobler * of Woodstock, and are recommended to the serious Perusal of all honest Freeholders, especially the honest Freeholders in the County of OXFORD.*

Query I. TO whom should Freeholders give their Votes? Should they give their Votes to those who, in almost every Step they they have taken in a new and unheard-of Manner of Opposition, have invaded their undoubted Privileges and are now under the Censure of the Representatives of the Commons of Great Britain? Or should they give their Votes to those, who by a steady Adherence to Old and incorrupt Principles have endeavour'd to maintain their Rights for almost half a Century, and therefore must continue to be the Choice of a free and independant People?

* See the former Collection, pag 63.

Query II. Is an open Nomination of Candidates by far the most considerable Part of the Gentlemen, Clergy, and Freeholders in this or any other County a robbing the Freeholders of their right of electing?

Query III. At any Time of such Nomination were the Doors of the Place appointed for a Meeting to deliberate upon a Choice ever ordered to be shut up?

Query IV. Whether the generous Offer of some to recover to the Freeholders a Privilege which the Friends to the Old Interest, never robb'd them of, does not put one in mind of the Story of a Thief, who once upon a Time generously offer'd a Sop to a certain Dog, which the Dog as generously refus'd, knowing to what Purpose the Offer was made?

Query V. Whether is it not for the Interest of every Freeholder to follow this Example of honest Trueman?

Query VI. Who are most likely to support our Laws and Liberties? Those, and the Lord knows how many there be of them, who are influenc'd by

by Places or Pensions in Possession, Expectation, or Reversion, or those, and every Body knows who they are, who never had any Connexion with the Tribe of Placemen or Band of Gentlemen Pensioners?

Query VII. Who can with the best Grace and clearest Conscience apply to the Freeholders with these Words of St. Paul, Brethren, “ Receive “ Us — We have deceived no Man — We have “ corrupted no Man, — We have defrauded “ no Man?”

Query VIII. Can it be said with the least Degree of Truth of Gentlemen who in a late Time of Danger were present in the great Council of the Nation then Assembled, and who voted for all Measures that the Wisdom of Parliament thought necessary for our Defence, that, they fled from, forsook and were unwilling to preserve their Country?

Query IX. Is not a steady Resolution to oppose every Step that has the least Tendency to load, beggar, and enslave our Country, a farther Evidence of a Love for it?

Query X. Have not the Heads, Supporters and Friends of the Old Interest always acted upon this Principle?

Query XI. Whether treating the Clergy with a due Respect and a constant and serious Attendance upon the public Worship of the Church now established in England, is not a sufficient Evidence of Zeal and Affection for that Church?

Query XII. Whether it is not notoriously known that the Heads, Supporters and Friends to the Old Interest have always given this Evidence of their Zeal and Affection?

Query XIII. Whether all Insinuations calculated to possess the Minds of well meaning People with Notions that such Men as these are Friends to Popery and Enemies to our Constitution in Church and State are not downright Calumnies?

Query XIV. Whether a Cöbler can any where be found of so bad an Heart as to invent, or of so weak an Head as to believe such palpable Lies?

XV. Whether therefore the true Author of the Queries (which have now been considered by your sincere and hearty Friend the Cöbler of Hampton-Wick) may not possibly be the Vicar of BRAY?

A LETTER to the Freeholders of the County of Oxford.

GENTLEMEN, London, Feb. 1753.

ALTHOUGH I am an old Fellow, although I have for a dozen Years past, resided in London, and have been withdrawn from Oxfordshire, my native Country, in which I have still a large Property; yet give me leave to address you on this Occasion; permit me at this Time of Confusion, Party, and Faction, to deliver freely my Sentiments, and my Opinion of your present Circumstances: Tho' I am at a Distance from you, I am not forgetful of you, my old Neighbours, nor at this Season have I been regardless of your Old Interest. We are all of us much obliged to Sir J—s D—d, for his past and present Services, and greatly bound are we in Gratitude to thank, and support L—d W—n, for the the Stand he is now making, jointly with Sir J—s D—d, in Defence of our Liberties and Privileges. They cannot, Gentlemen, be entrusted in honest, in better, in more independent Hands.

' As your ensuing Election is the constant Topic of the Conversation of almost all our Coffee houses in Town, so have I been diligent in my Enquiries, and careful, as I could be, to form an impartial Judgment of your Proceedings; and that the New Way, Gentlemen, is very different from the Old, and accustomed Manner of proceeding on these Occasions, is to me most plain; and that it may appear to you also in the same Light, with Permission, I will set before you the Old Method, and then leave you to draw a Comparison between that and the New Method, that by this Assistance you may be able to form, a right, a proper, and adequate Notion, and Idea of them both; and that you may fairly and clearly be acquainted with both the Old, and with the New way of putting in Nomination Gentleman to represent your County in Parliament.

I will be as concise, and, in as few Words as possible, will describe our Old Method to you; you must excuse me, we old Fellows are apt to be tedious, and to use more Words than are necessary in our Accounts of Things: Yet I will endeavour to correct that Vice of Old-Age, and will proceed directly to the Point.

At the Determination, or Dissolution of a Parliament, or on the Death of one of our Representatives, or by (though I do not remember an Instance of any one of our Representatives having vacated his Seat by his Acceptance of a Place under the Administration, and I hope I never shall see an Instance of it) I say, on a Death, on a Dissolution, or by any other Means that could occasion a Vacancy, our Old Method was this.

An Advertisement was directly published in the News-Papers; this Advertisement was addressed to the Gentlemen, Clergy, and Freeholders, not to the Noblemen, of the County of Oxford. The Purport and Intent of it was to bring together at Oxford the Gentlemen, Clergy, and Freeholders, in order to consider of a proper Gentleman, or of proper Gentlemen, according to the then Circumstance, to be put in Nomination for a Candidate, or for Candidates, at the Day of Election.

These Meetings were commonly crowded with Gentlemen, Clergy, and Freeholders, and though sometimes some worthy P——rs, (for worthy P——rs we have in the County) might join the Commoners at these Assemblies, yet they were not numerous, they did not preside, they did not harangue, they did not dictate to us at our Meetings.

Next came on the Day of Election, at which Time the Gentleman, or Gentlemen, who had been at the foregoing Meeting put in Nomination, appeared there, and generally came thither, attended with a large Body of Freeholders: Thus were they elected, returned, and accordingly took their Seats in Parliament.

And because this has been, for many Years past, the Case, have you therefore, Gentlemen? Have we therefore, my Fellow-Freeholders, been slighted? Have we been neglected?

Has, for this Reason, the Old Interest of our Country been called a peaceable Nomination of half a Dozen L—ds, and Gentlemen?

These Aspersions are so Borough-like, and favour to truly of the New Canvass, that, Gentlemen, they are beneath your Notice, and, like the Utterers of them, deserve to be both slighted, and neglected.

Can it further, and from the same Chain of reasoning, be justly said, or but merely supposed, that half a Dozen

Dozen L——ds and Gentlemen, have established any Right or Title superior to that of yourselves? superior to your Right, Gentlemen? To yours? To yours, who are the Electors, and therefore the only Persons to whom that Right can appertain, or belong?

No, Gentlemen, there is not the least Force of Argument to support this Supposition; there is not the least Reason: I therefore doubt not but you will so exert yourselves, that the most splendid, the most brilliant Assembly of L——ds and Gentlemen, shall never become glaring enough so to dazzle, so to delude the Freeholders of the County of Oxford, as to be able, in the most minute Point, to infringe, or diminish their legal Rights and Privileges.

I have now, Gentlemen, fully related to you our Old, Honest, Just Method.

The New Method is now, and has been for some Time past, most conspicuous to you all.

Sir E. T—rn—r has, at a Bowling-Green, declared himself a Candidate: He has since declined: He has since that again declared himself.

Open, and most palpable Inconsistencies are, at all Times, and by all Persons, most easily to be distinguished, and remarked.

You have been canvassed by L——ds, and for the L——d knows whom: You are now canvassed for L——d P——r, and Sir E. T—r jointly.

Remember, Gentlemen, your Country; read her Statutes, and obey her Ordinances: and that you may be more fully acquainted with the Nature and Proceedings of the New Canvass, of the New Interest; I have taken the Liberty to subjoin to my own Letter, another * also addressed to you, which, though it was printed some time since, has not, I fear, been made so public amongst you as it should have been.

'Tis

* See the Oxfordshire Contest, pag. 20.

'Tis worthy your Perusal; therefore, Gentlemen,
I hope you will read it, at the Recommendation of one, who is to you all

A most faithful old Friend, and Well-wisher,

A FREEHOLDER.

A LETTER to the Freeholders of the County of OXFORD.

Oxfordshire, March 19, 1753.

GENTLEMEN,

ALthough I am an old Fellow, yet as I have a large Property in Oxfordshire, my native Country, and have constantly resided there as a Part of the World dear to me above all others; give me Leave to address you on this occasion: Permit me at this Time of Confusion, Party, and Faction, to deliver freely my Sentiments, and my Opinion of your present Circumstances. As I live amongst you I see with my own Eyes; and, by being a Part of you, I cannot be regardless of your true Interest. Whether we are at all obliged to Sir J—s D—b—d, for his past Services and Speeches in Parliament: and whether we are bound to thank and support Lord W—n, for the Stand he is now making, jointly with Sir J—s D—b—d, in Defence of The Old Interest? These are Points very easy to be determined. Let me ask you a few plain Questions. What Advantage has our County, or our Country, receiv'd from these Gentlemen? Who propos'd a Tax on his own Constituents, in order to build the Town-Hall? And, pray, were these Gentlemen zealous and active for

for our King, our Country, our Laws, our Liberties, our Religion; when all these Blessings were in Danger, by the late Invasion of a Popish Pretender, a Son of the Old Family, and a Tool of the French, the Old Enemies of English Liberty? Are the Names of these two Gentlemen to be found in the List of Associates, on that trying and most alarming Occasion? Is there, can there be Merit in such an Independency as is really a Detachment from the Interests of our Country? Surely, Gentlemen, you will agree, that our Liberties and Privileges may be entrusted in honest, in better, in more properly independent Hands.

As our ensuing Election is the constant Topic of Conversation abroad, we who live at Home, must be earnestly solicitous in our Enquiries, in order to form an impartial Judgment of all Proceedings. That the New Way, Gentlemen, is very different from the Old and accustomed Manner of Proceeding on these Occasions, is to me most plain; and that it may appear to you also in the same Light, with Permission, I will set before you the Old Method, (supposing it the same with that now made use of by the Old Interest) and then leave You to draw a Comparison between That and the New Method; that by this Assistance You may be able to form a right, a proper, and an adequate Notion and Idea of them both; and that You may fairly and clearly be acquainted with both the Old and the New Way of putting in Nomination Gentlemen to represent our Country in Parliament.

At the Determination or Dissolution of a Parliament, or on the Death of one of our Representatives (for not one of our Representatives has, for many Years, vacated his Seat by being promoted to any Place of Trust in the Service of the Public;) I say, on a Death, on a Dissolution, or on any other Occasion

casion of a Vacancy, the Method taken by the Old Interest was this :

An Advertisement was directly published in the News-papers ; this Advertisement was address'd, To the Gentlemen, Clergy, and Freeholders ; not to the Freeholders universally, but only to the Friends of the Old Interest in the County of Oxford. The Purport and Intent of it therefore could only be, to bring together at Oxford such of the Gentlemen, Clergy, and Freeholders, as would consider of a proper Gentleman or Gentlemen (that is, a Gentleman or Gentlemen staunch in Support of the Old Interest) to be put in Nomination for a Candidate, or Candidates, at the Day of Election.

No wonder, therefore, that these Meetings were not over-crowded with Gentlemen, Clergy, and Freeholders. Sometimes, indeed, some P—rs, (and, true it is, many worthy P—rs we have in this County ;) join'd the Commoners at these Assemblies ; yet these P—rs were but one or two, just enough to preside, to harangue, to dictate at these Meetings, by making a Speech, and recommending True Blue Candidates.

Next came on the Day of Election, at which Time the Gentleman or Gentlemen, who had, at the foregoing Meeting, been put in Nomination, appeared there, attended with a small Body of Freeholders, who huddled up the Election, and made the Return accordingly.

And, as this has been, for many Years past, the Case, have You not therefore, Gentlemen ; Have We not therefore, my Fellow-Freeholders, been slighted ? Have not We, that numerous Body of us, who dislike the Old Interest, been neglected, and even excluded from the Meeting, and, in some Measure, bereft of our Rights as Freeholders ?

Has not, for this Reason, the Old Interest of this County been properly represented, as carrying Elections tions agreeably to the peaceable Nomination of Half a Dozen Gentlemen, and a L—d or two?

These Questions, if truly answer'd, will draw down so much Disgrace on the Friends of the Old Interest, and their partial Advertisement; and reflect so much Honour on the New Method of Application to The Whole County, that, Gentlemen, they deserve your most serious Notice; for they point out the Men, by whom you have been so long slighted and neglected; and who now court your Favour, not through Choice, but by Necessity.

Can it not further, and from the same Chain of Reasoning, be justly said, and most expressly affirm'd, that a few Gentlemen and a L—d or two, have endeavour'd to establish a Right and Title, superior to that of ourselves? Superiour to Our Right, Gentlemen? To Ours? To All the Freeholders, who are the Electors, and therefore the only Persons to whom that Right can appertain or belong?

Yes, Gentlemen, there is Sense and Argument to support this Assertion; there are repeated Facts to support it. I therefore doubt not but we shall so exert ourselves, that a small Appearance of Gentlemen and a L—d or two shall never more be capable of excluding any of us from the Election of our Representatives, or of depriving us, the Freeholders, of our legal Rights and Privileges. And I doubt not, but we shall so exert ourselves, as to crown the Endeavours of that numerous and honourable Assembly, who, (in Consequence of an universal Invitation) met lately to support our Rights and their own.

I have now, Gentlemen, fully related to you the Old, dishonest, unjust Method.

The New Method is now, and has been for some Time past, most conspicuous to you All.

Sir E—d T—r consulted some of the Freeholders, as to offering himself a Candidate: He afterwards declined,

C

declined, unless he could find some worthy Person to join him: Having found one, he now declares himself a Candidate.

Open and most palpable Inconsistencies are, at all Times, and by all Persons, most easily to be distinguish'd; but where is the Inconsistency in a Person's consenting to stand with another, who had refused to stand by himself?

We have not, for many long Years, been canvassed at all: We are now canvassed for L—d P——r and Sir E——d T——r.

I persuade myself, Gentlemen, that you will readily excuse this Trouble given you by a Brother Freeholder, as it really means your Service, and the Good of our Country. I shall only add one Remark farther, which is, to guard you against an Argument strenuously urged by the Gentlemen of the Old Interest; which is, That the Appearance of Lords at any public Meetings, on Account of our Election, is dangerous and illegal. If it were so, you know who set the Example: Whether this be legal, or not, is a Point of too nice and high a Nature for a Person in my Station to enter upon a Discussion of; but be that as it may, with what Face can those Gentlemen object against that as illegal, which they and their Friends have practised themselves, and in this very Instance?

That these Gentlemen themselves do not think it dangerous to the Public, is evident from their own Meetings, which have been honoured with the Presence of one Lord, and the Coach of another. So that the Appearance of Lords can be, even in their own Minds, no otherwise dangerous, than as it may, and (as in all Probability it will) prove dangerous to the Triumphs of the Old Interest.

I am, Gentlemen, &c.

An Elector.

ADVERTISEMENT.

WHEREAS some Doubts have arisen with regard to the particular Persons who sign'd the Oxfordshire Association in the Year 1745; and it having been confidently asserted in some Places, That no Association was at that Time formed in that County, it is thought proper to publish — An Authentick Copy of the Association enter'd into by Part of the Nobility, Gentlemen, and Clergy of the County of Oxford, at the Time of the late unnatural Rebellion in the Year 1745, together with the Names of all the Persons who subscribed thereto.

WHEREAS there is now a Horrid and Unnatural Rebellion formed and carried on in Scotland, by Papists and other wicked and traiterous Persons, countenanced by the old and inveterate Enemies of our Religion and Liberties, in order to dethrone his Majesty King GEORGE, the only Rightful and Lawful King of these Realms, in Favour of a Popish Pretender. WE the Lord Lieutenant, Nobility, Lord Bishop, Justices of Peace, Clergy, Gentlemen Freeholders and Others, of the County of Oxford, whose Names are hereunto subscribed, being deeply sensible, that in Times so full of Danger and Treasonable Practices, an Union of our Hearts and best Endeavours is requisite for his Majesty's Safety, and the publick Good of our Country, Do voluntarily and willingly bind Ourselves, and promise, That with our whole Power, Lives and Estates, we will assist each other in the Support and Defence of his Majesty's Sacred Person and Government, against the said Pretender, and all Persons that shall attempt, act, counsel, or consent to any Thing that shall tend to the Harm of his Majesty King GEORGE, and his Royal Highness the Prince of WALES, or any of their Issue, or Subversion of his Majesty's Government.

Dated at the Town-hall in the City of Oxford, the Fifteenth Day of October, in the Year of our Lord One Thousand Seven Hundred and Forty Five.

Marlborough.
Jersey.
Macclesfield.
Harcourt.
Tho. Oxford.
North and Guilford.
Jona. Cope.
J. D'Oyly.
Edward Turner.
Tho. Wheate.
E. Rudge.
Euf. Ifham, D. D.
Jo. Mather, D. D.
L. Brodrick, D. D.
T. Pardo, D. D.
D. Gregory, D. D.
J. Lenthal.
Philip Powys.
Temple Stanyan.

Charles Bowles.
Tho. Blackall.
Geo. Ri. Carter.
Richard Wykham.
Jo. Travell.
Aug. Schutz.
Wm. Haward, D. D.
Francis Clerke.
Tho. Aubrey.
Tho. Hunt, D. D.
James Edgcumbe. D. D.
Anthony Keck.
Jof. Smith, D. D.
William Friend, Clerk.
Thomas Rollinson.
Wm. Stockwood, Clerk.
John Burton, Clerk.
William Newell, Clerk.
John Raine.

Paul Elers.
 Jos. Smith.
 Jo. Hunter, Clerk.
 Edward Ryves.
 Thomas Burton, D. D.
 James Luck, D. D.
 Hen. Brooke, L. L. D.
 Anthony Apperley, Clerk.
 Geo. Davis.
 John Castle.
 Benj. Holloway, Cl.
 John Wallis.
 Tho. Lee, Cl.
 John Eddowes, Cl.
 William Wickham, Cl.
 Tho. Dockorson, Cl.
 John Morton, jun.
 Tho. Trollope.
 Coventry Litchfield, Cl.
 Lan. Michell, Cl.
 John Coker.
 Hen. Boyle.
 O. Jones, Cl.
 Cha. Taylor.
 Lewis Pryfe.
 Edw. Clerke.
 John Barrett.
 John Pryor.
 Thomas Powell.
 Lanc. Jackson, D. D.
 Francis Potter, Cl.
 John Wright.
 Chr. D'Oyly.
 Fran. Heywood.
 Bartho. Hall.
 Ralph Church, Cl.
 Hen. Taylor, Cl.
 John Loveday.
 R. Whistler.
 Wm. Turton.
 Samuel Walker, Cl.
 Wm. Bradshaw, Cl.

Nathaniel Blis, Cl.
 Jo. Hunter, Cl.
 John Nabbs.
 William Reynolds, Cl.
 Thomas Harris.
 Francis Blandy.
 William Norman.
 Thomas Godfrey.
 Edward Stone, Cl.
 Henry Whitfield, Cl.
 Tho. Paynton.
 Geo. Huddesford, Cl.
 John Shorter.
 Jos. Sellman.
 William Brooks.
 Robert Bufwell, Cl.
 Clement Cotterell Dormer.
 Charles Cottrell.
 John Martin.
 S. Greenhill.
 Fran. Webber, Cl.
 Fran. Wise, Cl.
 John Conybeare, D. D.
 Phil. Barton, L. L. D.
 Heritage Lenten.
 Denton Boate.
 T. Fanshaw, D. D.
 F. Trotman.
 Thomas Woods, Cl.
 Thomas Weekfy, Cl.
 Steph. Wheatland, Cl.
 Wm. Smith, Cl.
 F. Mafon.
 John D'Oyly, Cl.
 Tho. Coxeter.
 Chr. Wells, Cl.
 Aug. Batt.
 Sam. Thornbury, Cl.
 Thomas Sayer.
 John Wyatt.
 Robert Benn, D. D.

An Authentick Copy of another Part of the Nobility, Gentlemen and Clergy of the County of Oxford, who did NOT enter into the Association at the Time of the late unnatural Rebellion, and who would NOT subscribe thereto.

Earl of Shrewsbury.	† Norreys Bertie, Esq; Member for the County.
Earl of Abingdon.	† James Dawkins, Esq;
† Earl of Litchfield.	Thomas Rowney, Esq;
† Lord Viscount Wenman of the Kingdom of Ireland, and Member for Oxford.	William Sheldon, Esq;
† Honourable Robert Lee.	Francis Knowles, Esq;
† Sir James Dashwood, Bart. Member for the County.	Francis Page, Esq;
Sir George Brown, Bart.	† Thomas Whorwood, Esq;
Robert Laban, D. D.	John Nourse, Esq;
J. Browne, D. D.	George Dodeswell, Esq;
	—— Peniston, Esq;
	Thomas Snell, Cl.
	Roger Brent, Cl.

N. B. Those mark'd thus † us'd their utmost Endeavours to tax their Brother-Freeholders for erecting a County-Hall; while another Set of Men vigourously opposed such a Tax, and generously offered to contribute to the Expence of the Building.

A N

Address to the Freeholders

OF THE

County of OXFORD,

ON THE ### SUBJECT of the Present ELECTION.

---

The Title of a Freeholder is what I most glory in, and what most effectually calls to my Mind the Happiness of that Government under which I live.—As a British Freeholder, I should not scruple taking place of a French Marquis; and when I see one of my Countrymen amusing himself in his little Cabbage-Garden, I naturally look upon him as a greater Person than the Owner of the richest Vineyard in Champagne.

ADDISON.

---

THE Nomination on the 15th of this Instant of Lord Parker and Sir Edward Turner to represent the County of Oxford in Parliament was made unanimously, in a larger Meeting of the Landed Interest, than perhaps was ever assembled to prepare the Way for an Election that was likely to be contested---an Honour justly paid to Gentlemen of their distinguished Rank and Property, of acknowledged Good-

Good-Sense, Sobriety, Probity, and Religion, and sincere Attachment to his Majesty K. George, and to the establish'd Government both in Church and State.

Sir Edward Turner, Gentlemen, has already given you Proofs of his Readiness to serve you by his faithful and diligent Discharge of the important Office of Justice of the Peace, so necessary for the good Order and Convenience of every County.

There is Reason to believe, that Lord Parker will on every Occasion imitate that laudable Zeal for the impartial Administration of Justice, which has been seen in his noble Father, as well as his other eminent and well known Virtues.

If Offices and Duties of this Kind are too much neglected, and the Exercise of them scarce thought worthy to be the Employment of Gentlemen of Rank and Fortune; this shews the greater Condescension and Regard for you in those, who are willing to serve you in this Respect, and who for this very Reason are the most likely to do you Service in Matters of greater, or, at least, more general Consequence.

In the Year 1745, when a Rebellion was actually begun and carried on in these Kingdoms, every Gentleman had an Opportunity to manifest his Affection for the just and legal Establishment of his Country in the clearest Manner. It was natural to expect, that no one would be entirely indolent or unactive, when the Government, the Religion, and Liberties of his Country were in Danger. The Gentlemen in almost every every County in England thought this a proper Time to declare their Zeal for the establish'd Government, by Offers of personal Service, by large Subscriptions of Money, by form'd Associations, and every Means that seemed most proper to confirm and unite all in the true Interest of their Country.-----Among Yourselves, the Duke of Marlborough, as Lord Lieutenant, at the Head of the Nobility and Gentry; and the Bishop of Oxford, at the Head of the Clergy, form'd an Association, expressing their Abhorrence of the Rebellion, and their Resolution to defend with their Lives and Fortunes his Majesty's Person and Government.----Another Nobleman, who since that Time has been distinguished by a Trust of the highest Consequence, with his Majesty's Approbation begun, and with great Vigour compleated the raising of a Regiment in your County, either to be join'd with others for the general Defence, if Occasion should require; or else to be imploy'd, as it wou'd have been faithfully, in your particular Service and Protection.-----Lord Parker was then abroad on his Travels. His noble Father was on the Point of raising two Companies to be paid and maintain'd at his own Expence, when the precipitate Retreat of the Rebels rendered such a Step unnecessary.-----Sir Edward Turner attended at the Meetings of the Gentlemen on this Occasion, and was active and zealous in the same Cause.-----It is left to the Gentlemen of the Old Interest to inform You, what they did at this Time, and what Assistance they gave on so particular and so trying an Occasion.

But possibly the Old Interest implies some extraordinary kind of Merit, and the Gentlemen concern'd in it have some peculiar Qualifications to recommend them to the Favour of their Country.

Examine this Matter, and judge of their Pretensions.

Are they the Friends of Old England? But have they no Love for Present England? no Affection for that Constitution of their Country, under which they were born, and by which they have been always protected? that Constitution, by which the Liberty of the Subject is now establish'd upon a firmer Foundation, than it ever was in former Times?

Are they Tories, that is, such who by Principle are the warmest Advocates for Monarchy, and the most zealously attached to the Person of their Sovereign? Upon this Supposition, what Consistency can you find in their Characters, if their Actions, as well as Discourse, constantly proceed upon the Principles of those, who are the most avowed Enemies to Kings and Kingly Government—the Republicans? How can it be imagined, that they have an absolute and quite Divine Veneration for the Crown, who shew not so much as common Reverence or Respect to its lawful Prerogative? who malevolently interpret, and obstinately oppose whatever is, at any Time, and in the most constitutional Manner, done by its Authority? who seem to have establish'd

establiſh'd it as a neceſſary Rule of their Practice to vilify the Characters, and obſtruct the Meaſures of thoſe, whoever they are, and howſoever qualified, whom his Majeſty thinks proper to intruſt with the Adminiſtration of his Affairs? —If ſuch inveterate Oppoſition be ſuppoſed to proceed from any real Affection to Monarchy—What Monarchy muſt it be?

But perhaps theſe Gentlemen flatter themſelves You can believe, that they act thus upon the ſole Principles of pure Diſinterreſtedneſs; and hence that objection, the only one they profeſs to make to Lord Parker and Sir Edward Turner, that they are recommended and ſupported by Courtiers. But how are the great and eminent Perſons thus hinted at, otherwiſe Courtiers, than as they have a ſincere Affection to, and are ſuppoſed to be in the Favour of their lawful Sovereign; and are not unwilling, when they are properly called upon, to exert their Abilities in the Service of their Country? And what Places, tho' ever ſo profitable or honourable, do they take, which they are not ready to quit, when their own Honour, or the Good of the Public requires it of them?

But are the Gentlemen themſelves of ſo mortified and ſelf-denying a Spirit, as their Objection would imply? In private Life what greater Proofs of Generoſity and Diſinterreſtedneſs do they give, than other Men? And, if the Government were ſuch as they would chooſe, are they ſuch as would reſuſe all Favours and Preferments under it?

Consider how many of these honest and independent Gentlemen did accept of Places in the latter Part of Queen Anne's Reign; and what Use they made of them!

Consider, on a late Occasion, within your own Memory, when Lord Orford quitted the Administration, how sollicitous and pressing the same sort of Men were to have a share in the Posts, which then became vacant?

And in former Reigns, those of King Charles I. and King Charles II. whom do the Gentlemen of this Party still to this Day delight to admire and applaud, but those very Persons who received the greatest Favours from the Government of those Times, and served it with the greatest Zeal and Attachment?

What Room then is there left for any Pretence to Candour or Justice in aspersing every Gentleman as mercenary or interested, who is employed in the Service of the Publick? Where is the common Sense or common Honesty in objecting, and giving an invidious Turn to what is proposed evidently for the Interest of their Country, by Persons of approved Probity and Honour, only because such have obtained as a Reward of their Worth and Merit, or may obtain Places of Confidence and Distinction? — Yet this is the affected Patriotism of the Old Interest.

Another Artifice these Gentlemen make use of, in order to recommend themselves to your Favour, is, the great Concern they are us'd to express on the Account of Taxes. But with what

what Intentions, or with what Sincerity, they pretend this Concern, you may easily guess, by only recollecting a late and well-known Affair relating to Yourself, viz. What was designed at the Time the Town-Hall at Oxford was to be rebuilt; and by distinguishing WHO they were, who after having enjoy'd the Honours of the County for near half a Century, instead of embracing that Opportunity to shew their Generosity and Bounty, or even their Respect to You, and Gratitude for the Favours they had received, were for raising that Part of the Sum for this Building, which belong'd to the County, by Laying a Tax on all the Freeholders without Distinction; notwithstanding the principal Persons of the County, who had been for so long a Time excluded from any Part in these Honours, were willing and desirous to contribute largely and handsomely towards this Expence, in a manner that would have relieved the Freeholders of moderate Fortunes from the Burthen of such an Imposition.—It is true, a Gentleman of that Party afterwards took upon himself that Expence; but this argues no Merit in other Men, but is rather a Reproach to tho'se, who were more oblig'd to do so, that they suffer'd so large and heavy a Burthen to fall upon one who was not under the like Obligations.

If these Gentlemen should boast of themselves, that they oppos'd the legal Introduction of foreign Protestants into this Nation; only ask them what kind of Dislike they express'd, what Resistance they made to the violent Invasion

sion

sion of their Country by a great Popish Power, in support of a Popish Pretender, to the endangering of all our Rights and Properties, and for the Overthrow of our Protestant Religion and Government? And then wonder they should give You so natural an Occasion to ask them that Question.

The last Artifice to amuse You, which it is thought worth while to take Notice of is the Peace of the County, which, they say, is disturbed by this Competition.-----If they mean by the Peace of the County what they should mean, and not their own Quiet and everlasting Possession of the Honours of it, Why do they not, after so long and undisturb'd Enjoyment of these Honours, permit other Gentlemen peaceably to have their Share in them; to which they have at least an equal Right by the manifest Superiority in Point of Property on their Side, and by what they wou'd by no means have to be thought a mere Equality in the main and essential Qualifications for such a Trust? In this Particular indeed, it may be allowed, there seems to be some Consistency in the Principles and Conduct of these Gentlemen, if they think that all Honours ought to descend without Interruption, whatever Use be made of them, by a Sort of hereditary and indefeasible Right. But, whatever their Pretences or Claims may be, they cannot be right in themselves, nor at all respectful to You, if they tend to preclude Your Liberty of electing whom You like best. When therefore You have weigh'd and consider'd the Pretensions tensions on both Sides, if it shall be Your Opinion and Judgment, that the Candidates proposed by the opposite Interest are likely to serve You better, than these Gentlemen have done, or may do; what can be more equitable, than that these Gentlemen, since they pretend to have Your Peace so much at heart, should now lie quiet in their Turn? what more just, than that, if they will not of themselves, You should convince them, that they ought?

In the Choice of Knights to serve in Parliament, it has ever been esteem'd a material Consideration, that beside their other Qualifications, they shou'd be Gentlemen of such Credit and Importance, as to be able to promote, consistently with the general Good, the particular Interests of the County they are to represent.--- But if they must always be engaged on the Side of distressing the Government, of what little Weight they will be in the Support of any Cause that concerns their Constituents, is very evident. It may therefore reasonably be presum'd, that no Freeholder will lay his Representatives under any undue Restraints; much less, make it a Condition of giving his Vote, That they shall on all Occasions act in Concert with the Discontented; as this must bring manifest Inconvenience upon this County, and moreover tends directly to Confusion, and the Subversion of all Government whatsoever.

The Gentlemen lately nominated are under no Temptation to make use of the Trust You shall repose in them, to Your Disadvantage:
 Their

Their Rank, their Fortune, their publick and private Characters, give You all possible Assurance to the contrary: You may hope from them all manner of Benefits that may reasonably be expected from worthy and grateful Representatives.

What Good of any Kind hath accrued to the County of Oxford from its Representatives for many Years past, or what may yet be expected by it from such Principles and Proceedings; the Old Interest itself can best explain! This, however, is notorious, that the most considerable Persons of the County have been despis'd, and much the Majority of the Freeholders not regarded, even in their own Elections; and their Liberty of Choosing, at last, Openly and Publickly brought into Question. Will You then, Gentlemen, rest tamely under such repeated Affronts? Will You not declare Your Resentment, by embracing the Opportunity which Offers, by acting vigorously in Support of Lord Parker and Sir Edward Turner?

True Blue never Stains.

I.

FOR the honest Old Cause,
 And Support of the Laws
 Stand up, ye Freeholders, and Vote,
 Despise the Low Clan,
 And that great little Man
 Who has Rascally prov'd a Turncoat :

II.

Attentive poor Neddy,
 To his Counsellor ready,
 Never dreamt what that fly fawning Cur meant,
 'Till again, like an Ape,
 He's led into a Scrape
 By this Lick-spittle Fool for Preferment.

III.

No rank Presbyterian,
 Or vile Oliverian
 Can e'er gain an honest Freeholder ;
 He that Man approves
 Who his Country still loves,
 And for Places and Pensions ne'er sold her.

IV.

A Subject to muse on
 For sweet Madam Susan,
 Who with absolute Sway thinks to rule,
 But we'll humble her Pride,
 And forbid her to ride
 Over any besides her own Fool.

E

No

V.

No Courtier displac'd,
 And justly disgrac'd,
 Shall win us with Sycophant Look,
 Nor care we a Button,
 What Airs are put on
 By a Low-life contemptible D——.

VI.

No Almanack-maker,
 No Blood of the Speaker
 Our Affections are able to sever; ——
 Success is before us.
 We'll join in the Chorus
 Of WENMAN and DASHWOOD for ever.

The poor Supporters

O F.

The poor Old Interest.

A Song, by an Oxfordshire Freeholder.

FIRST in Support of Interest Old
 From D——y staggers L—f—d bold,
 An hardy Chief for drinking;
 His Glas he fills up to the Brim,
 And thinks by making his Head swim
 He keeps his Cause from sinking.

Next

Next comes an almost unknown Lord,
 For Fiddle, Lute, and Harpsichord,
 And Songs more fam'd than Bounty ;
 His Lyre he strikes, invokes Apollo,
 And wonders no more Brutes will follow
 The Orpheus of the County.

See next like Paris comes Sir J—s,
 Like him in Shape and Face he seems,
 Like him the Girls delighting ;
 Like Paris too I doubt in Might,
L—C— and H— have prov'd the Knight
 Not to be made for fighting.

Next Hector-like struts forth 'Squire B——s,
 Damns all Opposers Bloods and Souls,
 And swears that he will maim 'em ;
 While more serenely artful K——s
 His inward burning Rage controuls,
 And fondly thinks to tame 'em.

But see, if there's no Fear of Blows,
 The next, since we must count his Nose,
 Sneaks poor deserted B——e ;
 Learn by his Fate ye dastard Race,
 A Coward ne'er can shun Disgrace,
 Since scorn'd by such a Party.

But who comes next with mighty Noise,
 And bellows forth with clam'rous Voice,
 Come Jemmy and we'll crown ye ;
 Oh ! he is one beneath your Note,
 A Bottle in a Human Coat,
 'Tis only drunken R——y.

Fain would I stop, for to write aught
 Of one who scarce deserves a Thought,
     Implies an idle Penman ;
 But as the Dupe of all this Crew,
 And as a Sample of True Blue,
     I can't omit L—d W——n.

These are the Men who claim'd a Right
 To Parliament to send our Knight.
     Nor thought our Votes worth asking ;
 'Till PARKER and 'till TURNER came
 To fix our almost doubtful Claim,
     And make our Rights more lasting.

The rich Supporters

O F

The poor New Interest.

O R,

Tag, Rag, and Bob-Tail. A new Ballad.

WHAT, pray, supports the Int'rest new?
     A base dependent pension'd Crew,
     Led by a poultry Fryar ;
 One who has long been void of Grace,
 In hopes at length to gain a Place,
     And rise a Story higher.

First,

First, in the Van a Soldier comes Delighting — not in sound of Drums
     For flying fam'd, not fighting :
 The Ribband o'er his Breast he spreads,
 Marches with Brother Loggerheads,
     And says our Wrongs he's Righting.

A Puppet this! a mere Machine,
 Mov'd by the Man behind the Skreen,
     Whose Strings direct his Motion !
 He thus directed MUST obey,
 Nor dares resist the pow'ful Sway.
     This would obstruct Promotion.

A Conjurer next, not over-wise,
 A Son of Bribery and Vice,
     For Aw'rice known and Pride,
 With Glas's uprais'd consults the Stars,
 Examines Great and Little Bears,
     To find the jurer Side.

But what says Hudibras? the Stars
 I'm sure can tell no more than Horse ;
     Yet still he thinks they say,
 “ 'Tis, less Expence to join a Dupe
 “ Who'll spend for P—k—r — if put up.
     Thus Aw'rice points the Way.

Two Officers of Peace — not War
 Come next with Warrants to take Care
     Of those who won't assist 'em,
 And Mittimus prepar'd t' affright,
 And fast confine each Jacobite ;
     That's all who dare resist 'em.

From

From Blood of Rump descended one ;
 Th' others Descent was never known,
     For dirty Work well suited ;
 Well suited both : The Speaker's Blood
 Flows genuine still : that B—k—ll's Good
     Cannot be well disputed.

Some Clergy next, a Venal Crew,
 Some always such—some once True Blue,
     Well Wishers —— for Preferment :
 These join the Devil and his Elves,
Right Reverend Saints ! and d—n themselves
     As if there was no harm in't.

Lords, Lordlings, gay in Green, in Rear,
Red-Coats and Ragged-Coats appear ;
     But not a Voter seen :
Whores, Rogues and Pick-Pockets attend,
 With th' Hangman's self, their trusty Friend,
     And close the motly Scene.

T H E
Poor Old Interest Supporters Payment
 O F T H E
Rich New Supporters in their own Coin.

L A T E the New Interest to support
 A new-trimm'd Regiment came from C—t,
     With Lace unpaid-for shining ;
 A group of 'Squires, newly made
 Were here of every dirty Trade,
     On their bones of dining.

The Black Game, sleek as Jackdaws Polls,
In rustling Scarfs flock'd here in shoals,

To Dean'ries some are leaning ;
Without his Leave came sneaking L——
To represent his Daddy B——
(The Imp you'll guess has Meaning.)

What must These Men be now, d'ye think,
Who came to dirty Bew's to drink

A House for hackney Coaches!
Be ?—Hackney L——s and C——s true,
Who're forc'd all dirty Work to do,
Yet blush at no Reproaches.

A mighty Fufs by one was made
The Captain of the Cavalcade,
A Dupe to P—l—m H——ry;
Whose Money plentifully flew,
Borrowed to treat a ragged Crew
In hopes one Point to carry.

At this Extravagance, I pray,
What will the frugal B——d——d say ?

His Loan will be the stronger.
A better Game his G—— had play'd,
His Oatmeal Man had he but paid,
Forc'd now to tick the longer.

A walking Drum next Him you see,
Once signaliz'd for Trigamy,

A Cloak-Bag full of Wonder!
Whose Parent from a lofty Place
Was tumbled headlong in Disgrace,
For Lordly Theft and Plunder.

The

The rigid Priest, who Statutes makes,
 And breaks 'em too,—Preferment takes,
     A Canonry not scanty.
 He! who Pluralities did maul,
 Now bends the supple Knee to Baal,
     How Wharton's Ghost will haunt Thee!

Grey the Well-wisher grown in Tricks,
 Calf-like the Courtly Chalk now licks,
     And sure for Reasons weighty;
 Why should not I (exclaims the Sage)
 Turn Renegado in old Age,
     And wear the Lawn at Eighty?

With Praise insipid Wheatly Cu-
 -Rate dawb'd the Seeking Whiggish TWO,
     Tho' few his Word rely on;
 All gaping stood the brutal Crowd,
 Hearing the Creature Bray aloud
     They thought the Ass—a Lion.

A Brother Beast, of Hue divine,
 In unknown Figures known to shine,
     All just Reflection scorns:
 But happy say the Oxford Boys,
 Such Bulk of Head the Monster has
     To wield his weighty Horns.

A Turn-Coat Glyster-Giver comes
 Threat'ning to bruise the Tories Bums,
     And Pestle them in Mortar.
 Oh Squinter fierce! abate thy Zeal;
 No Vulgar Whiggs will take thy Pill
     Nor He bedeck'd with Garter.

Thus

Thus met, this fine Unvoting Crew
 Of Curates, Traders, Placemen too
 With Air important Swagger;
 Here you might see each sneaking Whigg
 With Expectation look as big
 As any Courtly Beggar.

In Punch's Theatre you've seen,
 The Puppets dress'd in Gold and Green
 With Stars and Garters glaring;
 When on Enquiry nought we find
 But Wooden Things.——for Shew design'd
 To please a Mobb with Staring.

These dance about as P—l—m points;
 'Tis He directs their limber Joints;
 Without whose Hand they'd falter,
 Directed by his secret Springs,
 Each Motion's owing to his Strings,
 Oh! was each String a Halter.

T R U T H:

Or, The Maskers Unmask'd.

YE Freeholders all pray attend to my Song, I'll tell you the Truth tho' I won't keep you long,
 You're like to be cheated, I'll open your Eyes,
 And shew you the Wolves thro' their Sheep-skin disguise.      Sing Tantarara Masks all, &c.

F

When

When Charles with his Scots and French Troops did advance,
 Who'd have made you all Slaves and a Province to France,
 What they'd do for their Country's Good was then seen,
 Yet they tell you their Country's Good's all they mean. Sing Tantararara, &c.

In Defence of Religion's and Liberty's Cause,
 To associate they cry'd was a Breach of the Laws,
 But the Older the Wiser 'tis said all Men grow,
 In Defence of their Sport they associate now.
Sing Tantararara, &c.

Say they the New Stile is a damnable Thing,
 'Twas first made by a Pope so must Popery bring,
 They strain at a Gnat yet a Camel gulp down,
 Who have kiss'd the Pope's Toe it is very well known. Sing Tantararara, &c.

Their time now they'll give for the Country's Sake,
 They'll be Justices all and their Dedimus take,
 When you wanted their Aid you might go to the Devil,
 But now they want us they are wond'rous Civil.
Sing Tantararara, &c.

For forty long Years of your Rights you've been bubbld,
 To define your Votes themselves they ne'er troubl'd,
 Our Votes now to gain they're Politeness itself,
 They grudge not their Pains and but little their Pelf. Sing Tantararara, &c.

Yet thus tho' they've us'd you your Votes you must give,
 To Wenman and Dashwood or not hope to live,
 For if you don't Vote on their side by fair means,
 That you mayn't Vote against 'em they'll beat out their Brains.

Sing Tantararara masks, &c.

An Expedition to Oxford.

A Late Expedition to Oxford was made,
 Of Crowds of Freeholders consisting, 'tis said,
 However, without them they made their Parade.
Which no body can deny, &c.

There were Black-Coats, and Red-coats, and P—rs,
 and P—rs' Men,
 More appear'd there by far than are with'd there agen;
 One honest Freeholder of such is worth ten.
Which no body, &c.

O L—ds! how they pranc'd it, first up and then down,
 What a rout did they make quite throughout the town!
 So noble their Show!—such an one was ne'er known.
Which no body, &c.

Of Ribbons, and St—rs, and G—rt—rs, and Strings,
 And L--dlings, and L--ds, and D-k-s, and such things,
 A Medley!—of which the whole C—ty still rings.
Which no body, &c.

Having travers'd the Streets (tho' not without fear)
 They shew'd first their Van, and next shew'd their Rear;
 And for less rough Reception, then fled to the Bear.
Which no body, &c.

Here their Speaker got up, and to them quoth He,
An Event, Sirs, has happen'd, I did not for—see,
For Our Stars are to day as unlucky as We.

Which no body, &c.

However, as here we have shelter'd our Crew,
(Tho' here we've no Business) we'll attempt still to do,
And tho' we've no Old Friends, we'll strive to make New.

Which no body, &c.

That's right, quoth a J—st—ce, so here, Sirs, in short,
I present you L—d P—k—R, a proper support ;
Tho' none in the Co—try, he has Friends, Sirs, at C--t.

Which no body, &c.

Not singly, quoth L—t—ll, for that must not be,
Here's T—rn—R a Knight full as proper as He ;
Full well are they pair'd, all the World must agree.

Which no body, &c.

With Applause and Huzzas now echoed the Place,
Very much to the chearing of ev'ry P—r's Face,
But no one's grinn'd more, than that of his G—ce.

Which no body, &c.

Huzzas on Huzzas they now often repeated,
Round the Table themselves they then merrily seated,
Most glad, at their Hearts, they had safely retreated.

Which no body, &c.

Now snugly they all push'd the Bottle about,
As the Liquor flow'd in, so their Wit all flow'd out,
And Abuse too ;—the L—ds know how much with—out doubt.

Which no body, &c.

Damnation to W——n by Mouthfuls out came,
And D——d was wish'd too a Fate just the same ;
Thus their Party-Zeal rose to a most furious Flame.

Which no body, &c.

They drank down Old-Interest and drank up the New,
 —What farther was done, is known to L—d S—;
 She's a Woman, she'll tell, for—she hates a True-Blue.
Which no body can deny, &c.

The RUMP REVIV'D.

You've heard how at Oxford a grand Cavalcade
 From Christ-church to High-street, by Courtiers, was made;

Where Tag, Rag, and Bob-tail, attended his Grace,
 To shew who had got, and who wanted a Place.

Sing Tantarara Slaves all, Slaves all, Sing Tantarara Slaves all.

Now when they came up to the Sign of the Bear,
 Old Bruin began at his Brethren to Stare,
 And whisper'd the D--ke in his Ear with a Laugh,
 "We Bears might be damn'd, was it not for the STAFF."

*Sing Tantarara Bears all, Bears all.
 Sing, &c.*

Then up Stairs they went, and there orderly plac'd
 The County's Fag-end, or the Rump double-fac'd;
 The Doors were lock'd up, as their Doings were dark,
 And L—t—ll was Speaker, and B—k—ll was Clerk.

*Sing tantarara Rumps all, Rumps all.
 Sing, &c.*

Quoth the Head of this Tail, "who shall we propose?
 "Who stands by our Rump ought to have a good Note;
 "There's Wenman and Dafwood, a Pox on their Pride!
 "They'll stand Stiff enough—But they're for t'other
 "Side."

*Sing tantarara Tails all, Tails all.
 Sing, &c.*

Then up got my Lord Justice Clerk in a Trice,
 With Looks that bespoke him most learned and wise,
 Recommended his Friend, and said, with a Smile,
 My Lord, at the bottom, was for the New Style.

Sing tantarara New Style, New Style.

Sing, &c.

Next the Speaker propos'd, with Wisdom profound,
 A Weather-cock who had already turn'd round;
 But said his good Friend would remember the Sum
 An honest old Speaker had got by the Bum.

Sing tantarara turn-coats, turn-coats, &c.

A Reverend Rumper confirm'd, from behind,
 Sir E——d had always a Side that was blind;
 And tho' he could not introduce him before,
 He'd labour to bring him in at the Back-door.

Sing tantarara Fools all, Fools all, &c.

Thus P--k--r and T——r were nam'd, and the Trump
 Proclaim'd them the champions & friends of the rump;
 But what Trumpet it was we need not impart,
 Th' Applause of a Rump could be nought but a Fart.

Sing tantarara trump all, trump all, &c.

When all of a sudden was heard, from without,
 Of Wenman and Dashwood, so dreadful a Shout,
 That trembling they roar'd out the DEVIL! the DEVIL!
 And the Rump seem'd at once t'have got the Tail-Evil.

Sing tantarara down Rumps, down Rumps, &c.

That the Shout came from Hell, the Fryar deny'd,
 For all Hell he knew had declar'd on their Side;
 Then bid them not fear, and remark'd with much Wit,
 Whatever might stand—'twas the Rump that must fit.

Sing tantarara old Fryar, old Fryar, &c.

The Fate of this Fryar no Man can bewail,
 Who once was a Head, and who now has turn'd Tail;
 Nor can we forbear his Conundrums to mock,
 Who is from a Doſtor cur-tail'd to a Dock.
So Sorrow go with the old Fryar, &c.

The Houſe call'd to order by wife Mr. L—t—ll,
 H' affur'd them their Meeting was quite fundamental;
 And like his Great Grandfather told them his Mind,
 “ Whoſe Speech was not breaking of Silence, but Wind.”
Sing tantarara Rumps all, Rumps all, &c.

And now of this Tail I ſhall tell you no more,
 But what is behind cou'd not come in before;
 Which is that we'll join all our Votes in a Lump,
 So the Rump at the Bear ſhall prove a bare Rump.
Sing tantarara Rumps down, Rumps down,
Sing tantarara down Rumps!

The Poor C O B L E R's Advice

TO THE

Oxfordſhire Freeholders.

FREEHOLDERS attend
 The Advice of a Friend,
 And once be admoniſh'd by me;
 Before you give Votes,
 I pray compare Notes,
 With Freedom, and vile Slavery.
Fal da roll, &c.

When Danger was near,
 Pray who did appear,

And

And stood in the Cause so hearty ;
 Not D—sb——d nor W—n—m,
 They were not those brave Men,
 They smil'd in the opposite Party.

Fal da roll, &c.

Who would you represent
 To set in Parliament,
 And support great GEORGE our Defender ;
 I hope none of those,
 That would join with our Foes,
 To bring in a Popish Pretender.

Fal da roll, &c.

Lord PARKER we know,
 And Sir EDWARD also,
 Has declar'd for the Good of the Nation :
 To them give your Votes,
 And raise up your Notes,
 Huzza with loud Acclamation.

Fal da roll, &c.

They are both Good and Wise,
 And I do you advise,
 Those brave Men for to represent :
 They'll be true to the Cause,
 The KING and his Laws,
 When they come into Parliament.

Fal da roll, &c.

What English Man brave,
 Wou'd e'er be a Slave,
 And lose both his Freedom and Right ;
 By Men of those Parts,
 That have all gallick Hearts,
 Not One having Courage to Fight.

Fal da roll, &c.

Then with Courage so bold,
 Let us not be controul'd,
 By such a conspiring Crew;
 We'll maintain the Cause,
 Our Freedom and Laws,
 In spite of the Livery Blue.

Fal da roll, &c.

Forget not their Tricks
 In the Year forty-six,
 Their Plots we have Cause to remember,
 For twice on a Day,
 We were freed from a Prey,
 Don't forget the Fifth of November.

Fal da roll, &c.

Brave MARLBROUGH's Name,
 And Lord HARCOURT's Fame,
 By us they shall ne'er be forgot;
 They are brave heroic Men,
 And will fight against them
 That e'er shall be found in a Plot.

Fal da roll, &c.

And now to the Cause,
 Our Freedom and Laws,
 Fill a Bumper and merrily Sing:
 Confusion to those
 That are England's Foes,
 Here's a Health to great George our King.

Fal da roll, &c.

Another S O N G.

Old England. Old Interest. Old Style. Old Tune.

— Bos, Fur, Sus, atque Sacerdos.      Gram.

YE Blues that have listen'd to many a Song, Dull, witty, droll, dismal, high, low, short and long,
Once more lend your Ears, and I'll open your Eyes,
And endeavour to make you all merry and wise.
Derry down, &c.

Their Votes and their Hearts shall Freeholders bestow
On Placemen, on Mar—b—b, L—d H—t, and Co?
They who ne'er will ask Pensions from Truth never fly, Deserve well a Seat—and shall hav't by and by.
Derry down, &c.

Poor Daf--w--d has long time been doom'd to a Rope,
And Wemm—n must suffer because there's a Pope;
So ten or twelve L—ds say;—but yet I'll assure you,
That ten or twelve L—ds are no Oxfordshire fury.
Derry down, &c.

And pray who are these that dare prate of the Church,
Yet gladly would leave the good Dame in the Lurch?
For sure they meant this (for which give them a beating)
When they talk'd to True Blues of their General Meeting.
Derry down, &c.

The Meeting was held, and 'tis said it abounded,
With many a Wrong-head and many a Round-head,
With Nobles and Baronets, Captains and 'Squires,
With Doctors well-fed, and with Mendicant Friars.
Derry down, &c.

*L—ds, C--m--s, and Cl—gy chose L--n--l for Speaker,
 Who nam'd as a Candidate Edw—d the Seeker ;
 For amongst us, I vow, quoth the 'Squire (and look'd
 A wiser or better is not to be found. [round]
 Derry down, &c.*

Should Ed—d succeed, his Schemes need no revealing,
 His cutting and shuffling and bad double Dealing,
 'Midst an old dirty Pack shew us how he'd behave,
 He'd soon be a Court-Card—for such is a Knave.
Derry down, &c.

The next recommended was P—rk—r the small,
 Whose Character—Faith, is just nothing at all :
 Nay 'twas whisper'd in Oxford by some simple Loon,
 That He was put up by the Man in the Moon.
Derry down, &c.

If such Tools are nam'd to support England's Cause,
 To stand by her Rights and defend her old Laws,
 All jesting aside (tho' they'll take it, I wot, ill)
Ods-Blues ! we had better have Tom's t'other Bottle.
Derry down, &c.

The Knight Arrant: Or, The Candidate.

A TRAGEDY of one Act, and one Scene.

Taken from SHAKESPEARE.

Dulce est Decipere. HOR. Cant. Edit.

As it was lately perform'd, By one of his Majesty's Servants.
 At the Particular Desire of several Persons of Dislinktion.

The Scene, Decorations, and Style entirely New.

DRAMATIS PERSONA.

The Knight Arrant, By Sir E—— T——r.

G 2

ACT

ACT and SCENE first and last.

The Scene opens, and discovers the Knight Shitting in a declining Posture ; He rises gradually, and comes forward.

TO stand or not to stand?—that is the Question.—
 Whether 'twere wiser in me, even to suffer
 The Flings and Satyrs of outrageous Tories ;
 Or to take up Arms against them, in these Troubles,
 And by opposing end them?—To stand*—to turn—
 No more ; and by a Turn to say I end
 The Crosses, and the thousand Disappointments
 That Honesty is Heir to—'Tis Deliv'rance
 Devoutly to be wish'd. To stand—to turn—
 Perhaps to be a L—rd ;—ay there's the gLEE—
 For by this Turn, the Chance of what may come,
 When I have shuffled off Integrity,
 Gives me no longer Pause.—There's the Respect,
 That makes a — of me all my Life.
 For could I bear the Whips and Scorns of Time,
 The Townsmen's Scoffs, the Gownsmen's Contumely,
 The Pang of despis'd Guile, the Insolence
 Of Tories out of Office, and the Spurns
 That my Demerit of the Worthy takes ;
 But that myself may my Quietus make
 With a bare Bribe ? Oh ! could I bear to groan,
 And sweat beneath a Load of Infamy ?
 But that the Hope of something after it,
 (At that C—t yet unknown, from whose rich Mines
 No Pensioner returns) pampers my Will ;
 And makes me chuse to shun the Friends I had,
 And fly to others that I know not of.
Ambition thus makes C—rt—rs of us all.

He goes off — to the C——t.

Here a Dance of Dæmons, Witches, Conjurers, and FRIARS. A Song by a Querister, and Exeunt omnes.

---

* N. B. The L—— the Prompter whisper'd so loud here, that He was hiss'd by the Audience.

H A M L E T, AëT III. Scene I.

TO be or not to be?—that is the Question.—
 Whether 'tis nobler in the Mind to suffer
 The Slings and Arrows of outrageous Fortune ;
 Or to take Arms against a Sea of Troubles,
 And by opposing end them?—To die—to sleep—
 No more ; and by a Sleep to say, we end
 The Heart-ache, and the thousand nat'ral Shocks
 That Flesh is Heir to ;—'tis a Consummation
 Devoutly to be wish'd. To die—to sleep—
 To sleep ? Perchance to dream ; ay, there's the Rub—
 For in that Sleep of Death, what Dreams may come,
 When we have shuffled off this mortal Coil,
 Must give us Pause.—There's the Respect,
 That makes Calamity of so long Life.
 For who would bear the Whips and Scorns of Time,
 Th' Oppressor's Wrong, the proud Man's Contumely,
 The Pang of despis'd Love, the Law's delay,
 The Insolence of Office, and the Spurns
 That patient Merit of th' unworthy takes ;
 When he himself might his Quietus make
 With a bare Bodkin ? Who would Fardles bear,
 To groan and sweat under a weary Life ?
 But that the dread of something after Death,
 (That undiscover'd Country, from whose bourne
 No Traveller returns) puzzles the Will ;
 And makes us rather bear those Ills we have
 Than fly to others that we know not of.
 Thus Conscience does make Cowards of us all.

The F R Y A R's Petition.

A New S O N G.

FROM Oxford we learn Fryar Twister the Lean
 Has wrote to Sir Ed—d to make him a Dean,
 Suggesting Preferment was chiefly his View,
 When he left the Old Interest and join'd with the New.
 Derry down, &c.

You (know Cousin Ned) I was once an High Flyer,
 But turning a Pimp I am Nick-nam'd a Fryar,
 E'en Boys shake their Heads at me as I pass by,
 And Sorrow go with thee Old Fryar they cry.
 Derry down, &c.

I therefore presume in this scurvy Condition,
 Most humbly to beg you to back my Petition ;
 For tho' I at present am Poor and look Small,
 I soon shall grow fat when I feed in a Stall.
 Derry down, &c.

Moreover I beg you to speak to his Grace
 To stretch the New Interest to get me the Place,
 For alas ! in a College I cannot live long,
 Being daily the BUTT of a Fable or Song.
 Derry down, &c.

When Fools (like Ourselves) from old Principles swerve
 The Censure they meet (quoth Sir Ned) they deserve,
 But the Wit that at present is chiefly in Vogue,
 Says the Knight is a Tool, and the Fryar a R——.
 Derry down, &c.

From Twisting and Trimming and turning the Coat,
 And Bawling for Rumpers, Yourself not a Vote ;
 Great Things you expect—but vain is your hope,
 Next Time you're preferr'd it will be to a R——
 Derry down, &c.

The FISHERMAN a FABLE.

Humbly address'd to

The Rev. Fryar TWISTER.

IN a clear Stream long Time had toil'd
 A Fisherman, but still was foil'd ;
 Oft chang'd the Bait, resolv'd to try
 (Since Maggots fail'd) the painted Fly ;
 Compos'd of Furrs of various Hue,
 And finish'd with a trusty Blue.
 Now down the Stream he lets it run,
 Now plays it gently in the Sun.
 Tempts with each Art the spangl'd Prey,
 And Sighs to see them glide away.
 But Hope, to Anglers ever nigh,
 Advises him to change his Fly,
 And wind the Wool to Northern Plaid ;
 But still he finds his Luck is bad.
 Perhaps this Colour is too bright —
 More Orange mixes — Ha! a Bite!
 Then boldly Strikes, secure to speed,
 And snaps his Line upon a Weed.
 Misfortune now his Error shews,
 So Wisdom from Experience flows ;
 He hence perceives, and must agree,
 That Weeds are blind, and Fish — can see.

A wiser Method next he takes,
 The tedious Line and Hook forsakes ;
 Deep in the Mud plunges a Rout,
 And troubles all the Stream about.

Dashes

Dashes the Dirt, and in a Pet
 He turns his Coat, and casts the Net;
 The blinded Fry by this Means cozens,
 And takes the Gudgeons in, by Dozens.

M O R A L.

*The least of Men may stir and trouble;
 The greatest Duke may be a Bubble;
 And they that seek a Lordly Dish,
 In troubl'd Waters chuse to fish.*

The New Way of overturning the Old Interest.

With proper Directions.

To the Tune of, When Orpheus went down to the Regions below.

TURN here to a Road never heard of before,
 Which lately an Outrider found;
 A Road that will lead to Preferment's Great-door,
 Though dirty and boggy the Ground.

Plain dealing of Old was the Way to the House,
 But now, if you'd gain your base Ends,
 Away with Sincerity, Falshood espouse,
 And sacrifice Country and Friends.

Deny, what you say, and disclaim what you write,
 Each villainous Artifice use,
 Bribe, perjure, and ruin—you'll chance to get by't
 A Victory over the Blues.

Cry

Cry aloud for the C——t and J——te cali,
 Each Freeholder true to his word,
 Against the Pretender and Popery bawl,
 In hopes to be Member or L——d.

Stop Thief, says Old Int'rest--We'll bear no such Thing,
 We've reason, we've Ears, and we've Eyes,
 He can't be a Friend to Church, Country or King,
 Who honour and Conscience defies.

A Placeman, perhaps by necessity led,
 Himself and our Freedom to sell,
 May travel this new way with scheming Sir N——d
 And serve for a Partner full well.

But no honest Soul that has Freedom at Heart,
 Will venture this miry curs'd way,
 Just fit for a Sledge, or a Tyburn strong Cart,
 Or those whom our Pockets now pay.

Such Leaders, such Roads should be stop'd with a Chain,
 If e'er to Old England we'd get,
 Or else of large Taxes we still must complain,
 And grieve at the National Debt.

Then justly despise the poor wretch, that intends,
 'Gainst Wenman and Dashwood to vote ;
 We know they're good Landlords, good Fathers,
 good Friends,
 And stick to their Country and Coat.

B O O T S for ever :

Or, The Important Question decided.

An liceat Homini Clerico-Politico SURAM suscipere?
Affr.

RED-HOT with Zeal for Int'rest New,
Besmear'd with Filth his Gown o'er,
Br—y fights not Horse like gallant Sue,
But tramps on Foot the Town o'er.

Prepar'd each foul Reproach to wear,
He flounders all the Dirt thro',
Meets venal Nobles at the Bear,
And Twister at the Split-Crow.

Thence muzz'd with strong Election Ale,
His Head more thick than Bl——s's,
With Gubbon Tongue bleats out his Tale,
Nor minds the People's hisses.

Now see him to his Kindred Mob
Dispense their Wages round,
And, well-pleas'd with the cleanly Jobb,
Forego his own Half-Crown.

Yet, Reverend Priest, tho' Lummy bawl,
And seem to like the Frolick,
The decent S——r scarce will call
Thy Mission Apostolic.

Employ thy Time, wou'dst thou not miss it,
On Tillotson and Featly,
Then stride thy dappl'd Grey, and visit
Thy Curacy at W——tly.

Since all thy paultry Cause must Scoff,
 And none thou can'st make Votes on,
 Surely 'tis Time thy Shoes were off,
 Get home, and pull thy Boots on.

Some Hints to those who want them.

An honest Song, by an honest Man.

YE Pack of d—n'd Scriblers, dull sons of Abuse,
 Your Verse, like your Party, admits no Excuse.
 What want ye ? unless your lame Cause to promote;
 And all your curs'd Nonsense won't gain you a Vote.

Ye Square-caps who side with this wrong-headed Band,
 Whose conscience' so tough that your oaths never stand
 Honest ! tho' you swear to oppose foreign Pow'r,
 And drink to your P—e, as you call him, each Hour.

Why D——d and W——n ? True-blue, I suppose.
 I grant it, dear sirs, but should R——ls be chose ?
 They're honest you say, but in what is it shewn ;
 In trying to pull the true Honesty down ?

Pro Patria says R——y, with Visage demure,
 And tries by fine Buildings to make his Cause sure :
 But take Heed, ye Britons ! a Gift once prevail'd,
 When ten Years employ'd in beseiging had fail'd.

Ye stubborn dull R——ls with D——d rejoice ;
 But PARKER and TURNER's the true Bri-
 ton's Choice :

Go on with Abuse, for I know you can't rest,
 The Fleas always bite where they find the Blood best.

Tho' LEIGH 'mongst the rest shares your Billingsgate Spite,
 His Virtue's too great for such Insects to blight :
 Invectives recoil when unjustly apply'd,
 And honour the Person they mean to deride.

Then hasten true Friends, to so virtuous a Cause,
 Let's join in support of our King and his Laws :
 As Britons we'll crush this curs'd Sect of Mankind,
 And as Christians we'll pray for Sight to the Blind.

The Poor Man's Relief:

OR THE

Right Way to dispose of Birmingham Half-pence.

Honest Neighbours attend to a well meaning Song,
 From a Friend who would right those who now suffer Wrong ;
 Of the Birmingham Halfpence my tale shall be told,
 Where live many Chymists who turn lead to gold.
Derry down, &c.

Were Halfpence e'er made of a Metal so base?
 A Mixture of Lead, Tin, Dirt and of Brass.
 And must we then take such Halfpence in pay ?
 We cannot—we will not—I'll shew you the way.
Derry down, &c.

Take then my Advice—and in humble Petition
 Set forth to both Houses your woful Condition.
 And they will present an Address to the Crown,
 To put for the future such false Halfpence down.
Derry down, &c.

And be it enacted—they farther will pray,
 And it shall be enacted our Monarch will say,
 That no Man shall counterfeit Halfpence produce
 Excepting and saving for the following Use.

Derry down, &c.

If a Cully beset by the Sharpers at W——'s
 Should lose his Estate by ingenious Sights,
 The Knave shall be paid in Birmingham Pence,
 And the Fool be lock'd up till he get some more Sense.

Derry down, &c.

If any for bye Ends old Friends shall oppose,
 With Birmingham Halfpence he shall button his Clothes: [plainly see,
 Who are Turners and Twisters you will then
 And two Sets of Buttons we order for L——.

Derry down, &c.

Be it farther enacted ('tis not * Wisdom I mean)
 But another Castellan, great John in the Green,
 That he pay all his Tools in the Birmingham Treasure,
 Such, such is our Will—and such is his Pleasure.

Derry down, &c.

A New S O N G.

BRAVE Oxfordshire Freeholders,
 Rub up your drowzy Eyes,
 And soon you shall discover,
 A Party in Disguise,
 That court your Votes and Voices,
 For J—y's Trusty Friends,
 As Zealous in his Interest,
 As any Clement sends.

* The Name of the Keeper of Oxford Castle.

They talk of Peace and Loy'ly,
 When cringing for your Vote,
 But strive by all their Actions,
 Contention to promote ;
 When roaring o'er their Liquor,
 And swearing o'er their Cause,
 Drink Healths of new Invention,
 To 'scape our Righteous Laws.

Against all their Opposers,
 They swell with Rage and Spite,
 And hope by cruel Threatnings,
 All such to scare and fright ;
 They spare no Cost or Labour,
 To gain their Point in View,
 So active are all Parties
 Of the seditious Crew.

For by such base Proceedings,
 They hope to gain their End,
 And Father set against his Son,
 And Friend, against his Friend ;
 Promoting high Divisions,
 Hot strife and cruel Jarrs,
 To raise a fresh Rebellion,
 To end in Civil Wars.

And then to bring in Pop'ry,
 With all it's Motley Crew,
 Rome's Bulls, with Priests and Fryars,
 And their dumb Idols too ;
 Pardons and Indulgencies,
 They then cou'd have for Gold,
 Be safe from Purgatory,
 In Sin tho' ne'er so bold.

But then these Gascoignaders,
 That now your Favour crave,
 Invested with Rome's Power,
 Your Lands and Lives wou'd have ;
 A Halter, Sword, and Fire,
 Aloud they soon wou'd cry,
 And then for Cursed Hereticks,
 You all must surely dye.

Pray Gentlemen confider,
 E'er further you proceed,
 We know of such base Members,
 Our County hath no Need ;
 Then give your Votes and Voices,
 To those that dare appear,
 Protecting of their Country,
 When Rebel Foes are near.

Be wise, ye Rebel Party,
 With Us no more contend,
 Strip off your thin Disguises,
 Your Lives and Actions mend ;
 Shortly you must give Account,
 Before the King of Kings,
 Where Pardons and Indulgencies,
 Will prove but worthless Things.

So to conclude my Verses,
 God blefs you all with Peace,
 And Grant Strife and Contention,
 Betwixt you all may cease ;
 God blefs Great George our Sovereign,
 His Royal Offspring too,
 And the Brave Duke of Marlbro',
 And so I bid Adieu.

Pleaſaunt Rythmes upon the Rump.

From an old M. S.

Rumpitur Invidia, quod Turba ſemper in omni Monſtratur digito, rumpitur invidia. MARTIAL.

“WHAT is thilke Rumpe?” quoth peerly John;
 A thing thou earſt haſt look’d upon,
 When Saxon Men devoid of Fear,
 Embrav’d themſelves in yellow Gere.
 “What is thilke Rumpe?” quoth learned Clerke,
 That late of Beaſt receiv’d the Merke,
 Ah! weal-away, it was the mede,
 Certes, thou haſt for gentle Rede,
 When thou didſt prick it o’er the Plain
 From Oxen-forde and back again,
 With quaint Addeſſe, only to be Flouted by Rump of Seignorie.

Wou’d ye of Faſſions Rumpe Merkes ken?
 It is the Bane of Engliſhe Men:
 A reſtleſſ miscreated Thing
 Tokening ill to Chirche and King,
 Growning for State and Had—y—wiſt *
 Nathleſſ to honour State ne liſt,
 Fag-end of Nott-hedes, ſtinkin, vile,
 Y-fill’d with Curſidneſſ and Guile;
 Fitting low Place; when reared ’yond
 Full ſoul beſtad is old Englonde,
 Then thrall’d Knights drede Cravens Mercy
 And everich Thing wends Arſie-verſie.

* See Mother Hubberd’s Tale.

The Second PAYMENT

Due to the Supporters of the

The NEW INTEREST.

Parcite Personis, dicite de Vitiis.

NOT Persons destitute of Cash,
Vices I rather choose to lash,
Abuse provokes my Passion :
 Abuse ! of Honest Men, well known
 To seek their Country's Good alone,
 The Welfare of the Nation.

These are the Nation's truest Friends,
 Who have no stingy, sordid Ends
 In which their Views determine :
Those must be sure it's fatal Foes,
 With selfish Views who These oppose ;
 ENGLAND'S blood-sucking Vermin !

Some wond'rous Props are still behind,
 Who are ordain'd to teach Mankind
Honest to be and steady ;
 Many, who others thus should teach,
 Elope themselves from what they preach,
 And for each Wind are ready.

These make the Husband break his Vow,
 Or swear they'll with his Heifer plough,
 To effect one wicked Turn :
 Are these the Holy Guides to Heav'n,
 Whose Doctrine's stuff'd with Papish Leav'n,
False we must be,—or Burn.

Yon's one a stalking Mafs of Lead ;
 Quite corpulent his very Head !
     A Head without a Lining !
 And yet, to all Men's great Surprize,
Logg makes Pretences to be wife,
     In solemn Dullnefs fhining.

From Jac. moft violent his Turn,
 With Whiggifh Rancour next to burn,
     Sure all this While is Mifs-Time ;
 Not yet to raife him to a Dean,
 What can the wicked Great-Ones mean ?
     A Pope he'd been by this time.

One fleek Divine need not be nam'd,
 For Ofculation only fam'd,
     His Paffion for it true is ;
 He fmacks the Walls, the Posts, the Trees,
 And kifles ev'ry Thing He fees,
     But Fundamental L——s.

Whether from Taffe or Whim's not clear,
 He fmacks the Bum of lovely Dear,
     If Fame be not a Liar :
 What Luxury then muft it be,
 To kifs the Hand of Majefty,
     For fome Preferment higher ?

A Hebrew Brother moft profound,
 Who hunts at Home in Barren Ground,
     And ftill no Roots difcovers ;
 Is forc'd to proule Abroad for Game,
 The Coal-Hole Story not to Name,
     Fit Scene for Dingy Lovers.

View the tall, fallow Mountaineer,
 A Slave for Nothing thirty Year,
     A Drudge, yet ne'er promoted ;

Oh ! Cambro-Britain quit thy Chain,
 From Servitude return again,
 To Freedom be devoted.

No longer stifle Discontent,
 Convinc'd that Nothings for Thee meant,
 Thy Native Thoughts recover ;
 'Tis Dirty Work which makes Thee foul,
 Thy Face the Emblem of thy Soul,
 Thy inward Parts discover.

Yon' Jemmy Doctor,—how demure !
 In Tory Schemes late Connoisseur,
 His Whys has and Wherefores ;
 Should He for Turning miss his End,
 With Taffy's Blood He'll curse his FRIENDS,
 Oh Tempora ! Oh Mores !

Since Turncoats, Twisters, seeking Whigs,
Rumps, Weathercocks, and Whirligigs,
 All help to fill this Sonnet ;
 I can't omit that solemn Wight,
 Who late a roaring ———te,
 Cry'd out for Plaid and Bonnet.

No longer now such Tenets please,
 In Hopes of greater Gain, at EAS-
 INGTON he weekly preaches ;
 See here what Interest will do !
 In drinking Healts, I'll warrant You,
 Oft He has piss'd his Breeches.

Base-born Sons These of the Church,
 For Gain who leave her in the Lurch,
 And openly despise Her ;
 Who Conscience at the Bear can pawn,
 Break Promises in Hopes of Lawn,
 Yet ne'er come to the MITRE.

N. B. The Third Payment in full of all Demands, will be publiſh'd in a few Days.

To the Right Honourable Lady SUSAN KECK.

M A D A M,

I Receiv'd the favour of your Ladyship's Pacquet last Tuesday Night, and have read the Pamphlet you so particularly recommend, with Attention: and as your Ladyship is pleased to desire my Opinion of it, I shall give it with that Freedom and Sincerity which I have always used to do; relying on your Ladyship's good Sense and Candour for Excuse, if I happen to be wrong in it. The * Address now lies before me, and I shall consider each Paragraph, as it occurs.

It is said, first " that the Nomination of our New Candidates" was made unanimously, in a larger Meeting of our Landed Interest, than perhaps was ever assembled to prepare the way for an Election that was likely to be contested. I cannot, Madam, but agree, that the Nomination was unanimous; as how should it be otherwise, when only the Friends of one Party were assembled? but that their Meeting was larger, we have only their bare Assertion: the names that they Printed, tho' perhaps ostentatious in Number when eked out with &c's, seem not so formidable on account of their Landed Interest, when the Colleges were ransacked for petty Vicars and Curates to swell out the Lay Muster-Roll. The Qualifications of our New Candidates, afterwards set down, I shall not pretend to examine : I shall only presume, (with our Author) that those of our Old Members are equal at least in every particular.

* See Page 23.

Great Strefs is next laid on Sir E—d T—r's having served in the important Office of Justice of the Peace ; which indeed would induce me to give him my Voice (if necessary) to make him Foreman of our Grand Juries, or even President at the Sessions : but while my Attention is fixed on much more important Offices in which my Country may be served, I look on the Magisterial Duty as of some small weight indeed, but hardly sufficient of itself to turn the Ballance in his favour. Were that alone the best plea for soliciting our Vote, I should in that point rather give it to my Neighbour Lenthall, who has for such a length of years “ given us Proofs of his readiness by a diligent Discharge of that important Office.” However, if any strefs can be laid on so minute a Circumstance, I dare say our Old Candidates, whenever called upon, will fill up the judicial Chair with equal Decorum, Grandeur, and Utility.

That my Lord Parker will hereafter “ imitate “ that laudable Zeal for the impartial Administration “ of Justice, which has been seen in his noble Father,” I can neither promise nor deny, as I affect not to pry into Futurity : but, as this is made so very essential a qualification for a County Member, let us e'en wait the Issue ; and perhaps after a seven Years Experience, we may find “ other eminent “ and well known virtues” in the young Lord to engage our Notice.

But now comes the sparring Blow, the popular Argument, flung out to catch the Multitude, the Association. With what a parade of pretended Services have they ushered in the Rebellion of 1745 ? —The Duke of M—— at the Head of the Laity, —the Bp. of O—— at the Head of the Clergy, —What —What did they do?—Why they “ expressed “ their Abhorrence of the Rebellion.” And had not the whole County done the same before, when they presented their Address? Another Nobleman, we are told—raised a Regiment; and that we may not lose sight of Lord Parker in this time of Bustle and Tumult, we are to know, “ he was then abroad on his “ Travels.” —O fortunate County, to be represented by one who has traversed Italy, has been at Paris, and seen the French King! —But to return; amidst these great and glorious Actions what did Sir Edward? Did He raise a Regiment?—Did He risk his Life and Fortune in defence of his Majesty’s Person and Government? —No.—What then did he do? —Why, he “ attended at the Meetings of the Gentlemen.”

“ But possibly the Candidates of the Old Interest have some peculiar Qualifications.—Examine this Matter, and judge of their Pretensions.”—And now comes on this dread Inquisition, in a long String of unanswerable Questions.

And First, “ Are they the Friends of Old England? —But have they no Love for Present England? ”—Pathetic Antithesis! —“ Are they “ Tories?—Have they any real Affection to Monarchy?—And what Monarchy must it be?”

They cannot love Present England, because they wish to see it in as flourishing and glorious a Condition as Old England was.—They cannot be Tories, (that is, as our Author defines it, such as are the warmest Advocates for Monarchy) because they are so far Republicans, as to stand up for the Liberty of the People.—They cannot, again, have any real Affection to Monarchy, because forsooth they obstruct the Measures of those, “ WHOEVER “ THEY ARE, and HOWSOEVER QUALIFIED” that are in the Administration:—an implicit

implicit Submission to the Will of Ministers being the sole Test of Fidelity to Kings.—Lastly, “What Monarchy must it be?”—Undoubtedly it must be the absolute French Monarchy, because they solicit a Seat in that Parliament, which dares to assert the Peoples Rights, in opposition to Ministerial Power.

And now, Madam, our Author would insinuate, that “perhaps our Old Members flatter themselves “We can believe they act upon the sole Principle of “Disinterestedness,” and therefore as they have no Places, nor ever will have any, nor are they set up by those that have, they reasonably “object to the “New Candidates, that they are recommended by “Courtiers.” I am glad that he has Modesty enough to admit the Truth of this Objection; and since, on the one Hand, our Old Candidates are most violently opposed, and on the other Hand the New Candidates are as vigorously supported, by all who have the least Dependance on the Court, it must be left to every Freeholder to determine for himself, which is most likely to act without Influence or Interest for the real Good of his Country.

I have turned the Leaf over, in which a Reference is made to what was done in I know not what Reigns, and shall only observe, that surely there can be nothing exceptionable in the Actions of our Old Candidates, when Instances of other People’s Conduct invidiously misrepresented, are alledged as Arguments against them.

But the next Accusation, Madam, demands a particular Consideration, as it is flung out to irritate the Minds of our “Freeholders of moderate Fortunes.” A most heavy Charge is brought against our present Members, that they did not at their own Expence rebuild the Town Hall; whereas others would readily have done it, could they by that have bribed the County to elect them. Truly a very strong Offer

Offer this ! And if conscience and honour are out of question, every Voter may without any regard to his Oath expect to have his own private dwelling House erected for him by the Person to whom he gives his Voice.

I am very glad, Madam, (as my Paper is now almost filled) that there is nothing more in this Address, which needs Confutation. What I have already said, is hastily set down, without digesting my Thoughts ; nor have I time even to review what is written. Your Ladyship will perhaps differ from me in Opinion ; but no Party Disputes, no clashing of Interests, shall ever prevent me from being

Your Ladyship's most faithful, and affectionate Servant,

March the 23d,
1753.

M. H.

The E N D.

237-12

